Pr 12:26 ¶ The righteous [is] more excellent than his neighbour: but the way of the wicked seduceth them.

That right man he guide perfect way, but that bad man his way

Pr 12:27 ¶ The slothful [man] roasteth not that which he took in hunting: but the substance of a diligent man [is] precious.

If man search for animal finish then kill, but he not cook, why? Lazy. But he work, his things precious.

Pr 12:28 ¶ In the way of righteousness [is] life; and [in] the pathway [thereof there is] no death.

That right way have life, that path dead nothing.
